

Not Only

Brian Patten

Not only the leaf shivering with delight
No,

Not only the morning grass shrugging off the weight of frost
No,

Not only the wings of the crane fly consumed by fire
No,

Not only the steam rising from a horse's back
No,

Not only the sound of the sunflower roaring
No,

Not only the golden spider spinning
No,

Not only the cathedral window deep inside the raindrop
No,

Not only the door opening at the back of the clouds
No,

Not only flakes of light settling like snow
No,

Not only the sky as blue and smooth as an egg
No,

Not only these things

Not Only Brian Patten

Not only the leaf shivering with delight

No,

Not only the morning grass shrugging off the weight of frost

No,

Not only the wings of the crane fly consumed by fire

No,

Not only the steam rising from a horse's back

No,

Not only the sound of the sunflower roaring

No,

Not only the golden spider spinning

No,

Not only the cathedral window deep inside the raindrop

No,

Not only the door opening at the back of the clouds

No,

Not only flakes of light settling like snow

No,

Not only the sky as blue and smooth as an egg

No,

Not only these things